Leadership in the Public Sector

2022

The Tō'ou reo, kia 'akarongo' ia, ei puapinga nō'ou, Your Voice Should be Heard, Your Voice is important Leadership in the Public Sector survey is the second one conducted in 2022 by the Office of the Public Service Commissioner (OPSC). This survey focused on leadership and management skills and was launched on Thursday 27th October. The survey was open to all employees from 28 Public Sector Agencies for three weeks, closing at 8am on Monday 21st November. The survey was conducted through Survey Monkey and was made available to all Public Sector employees through an email link and print versions. The survey was run for an additional week due to some IT issues.

This survey followed the same design as the Health & Wellbeing 2022 survey, having been developed to be more user friendly, more focused, shorter and to encourage participation across the sector. Participation rates in the Health & Wellbeing Survey totaled 471, which included 59 employees from the Pa Enua who completed a shorter version. Employee participation rates were considerably higher for this survey with a total of 663 employees participating, including 82 employees from the Pa Enua who completed the shorter version. Eleven employees from the Pa Enua completed the full version survey. This number is not included in the 82 figure.

This survey has only two 'identifiers', Ministry and Division, meaning that demographic information is not able to be produced for this report. The addition of Ministry and Division will allow larger Agencies the option to identify and provide a more targeted approach to training and development initiatives at a management level. For demographic information, employees can access the Demographic Dashboard that was launched in August, and is available on the OPSC website.

It is envisioned that the individual Agency results and information provided from this survey can be used to provide an insight into how management are performing in key management areas and give them opportunities to learn, change behaviours and develop skills that will help all employees in the Public Sector to excel in their jobs and foster positive, supporting work environments.

In our endeavours to be more transparent and for the purposes of improving performance, accountability and the service delivery to the public, this report is available to all Public Sector employees and the Public on the OPSC website.

The Tō'ou reo, kia 'akarongo' ia, ei puapinga nō'ou, Your Voice Should be Heard, Your Voice is important survey has been designed to provide feedback to Public Sector agencies and management staff on the decision making, communication, planning and creativity integrity and trust, managing change and decision making and performance management skills of Public Sector management.

Leadership & Management skills require ongoing development by individuals though training and development both formal and on the job/informal, gaining experiences and assuming increased responsibilities.

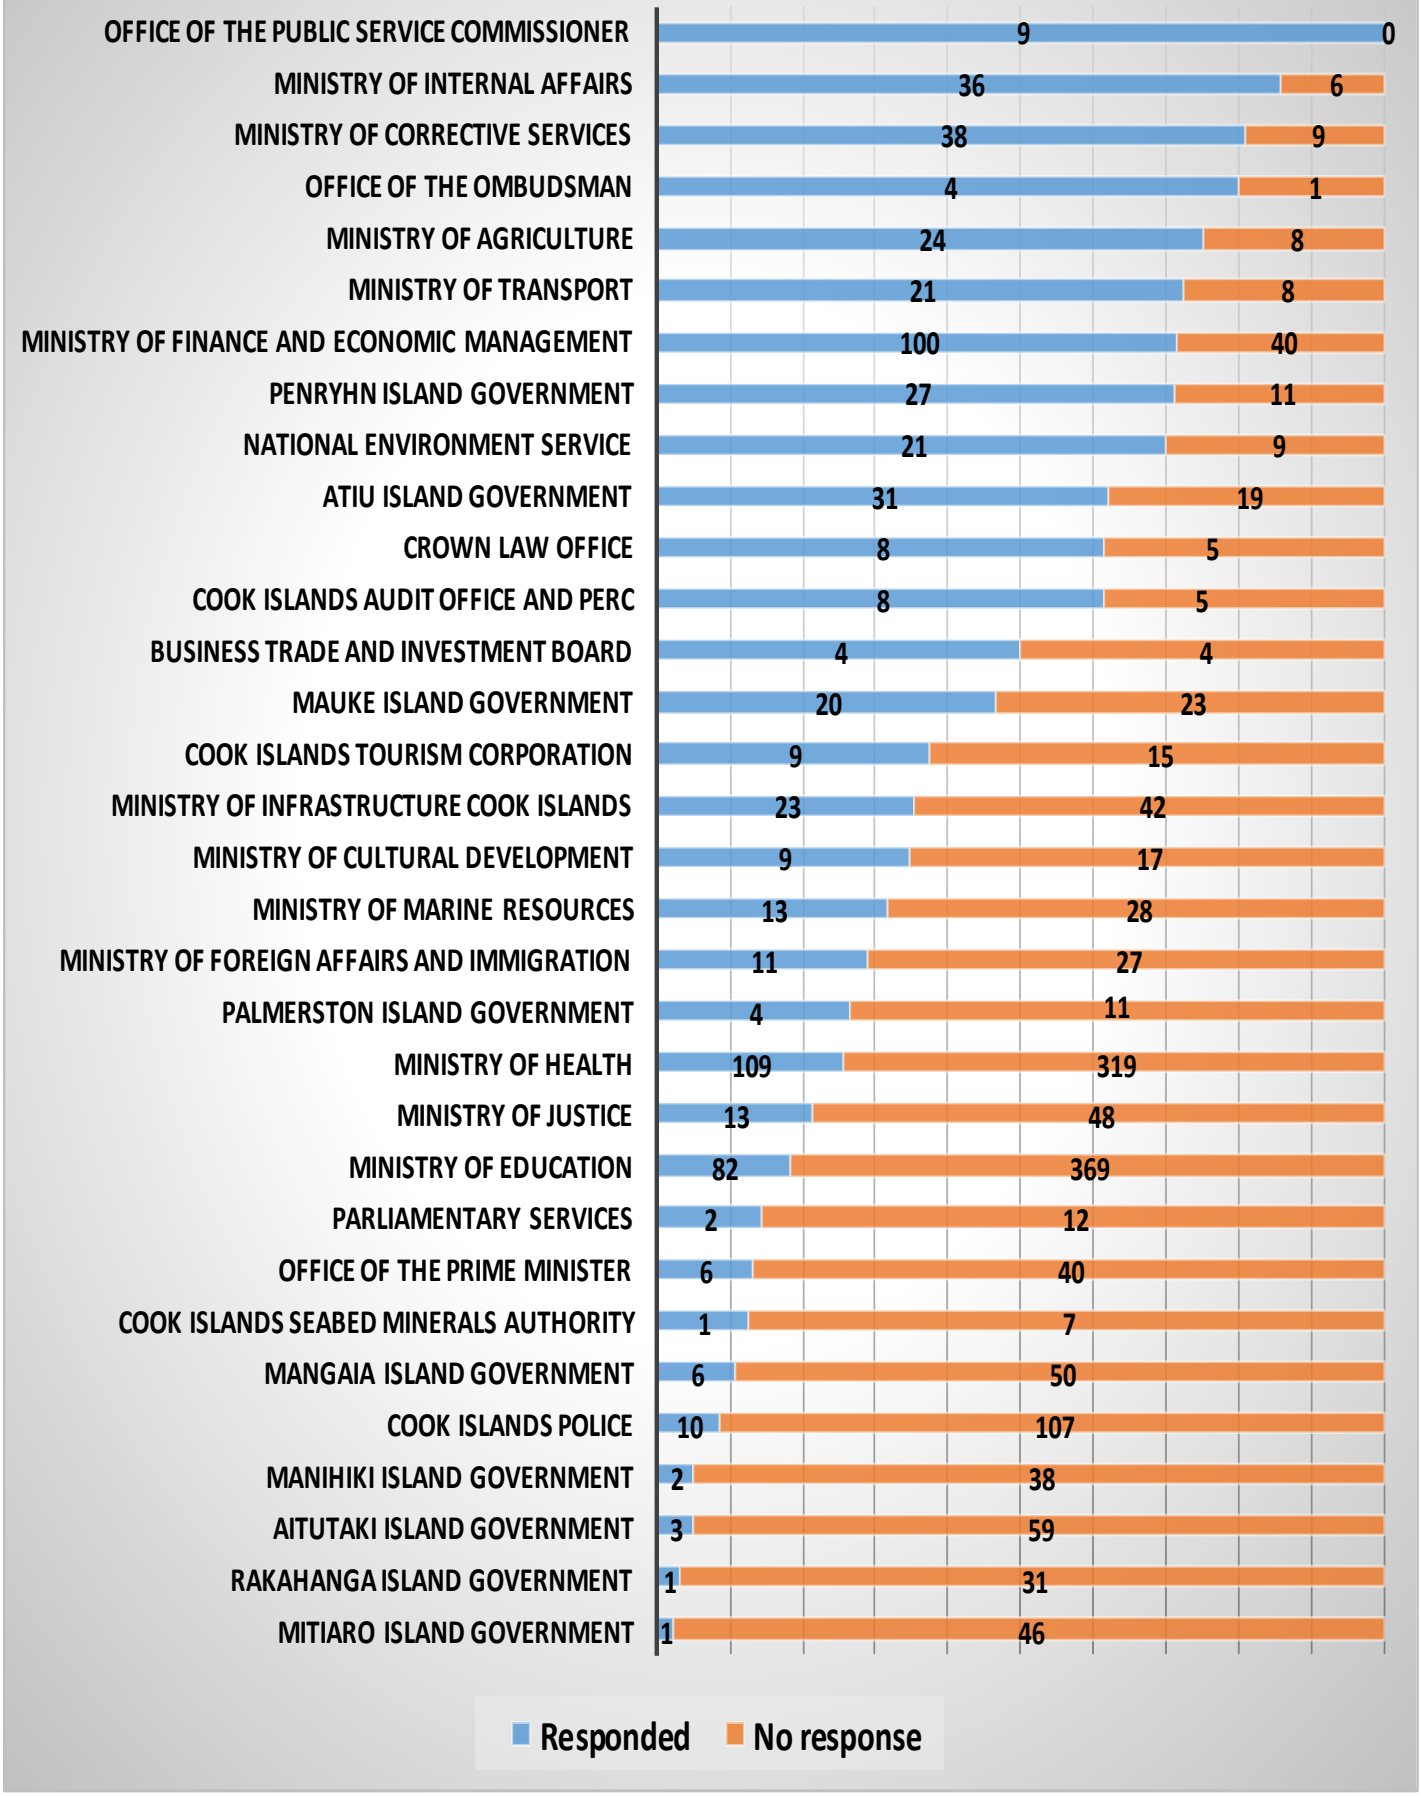
The survey will provide feedback to Public Sector management staff and assist them with opportunities to learn, adjust behaviours and develop skills that will enable all employees in the Public Sector to excel in their jobs and foster positive, supporting work environments. Ultimately it is envisaged that empowered and engaged employees will be more motivated to provide responsive and high quality services to the general public.

The Leadership Survey Response Rate graph below includes participation data from both the full version and short version surveys. Number of employees was sourced from HRMIS as at November 2022.

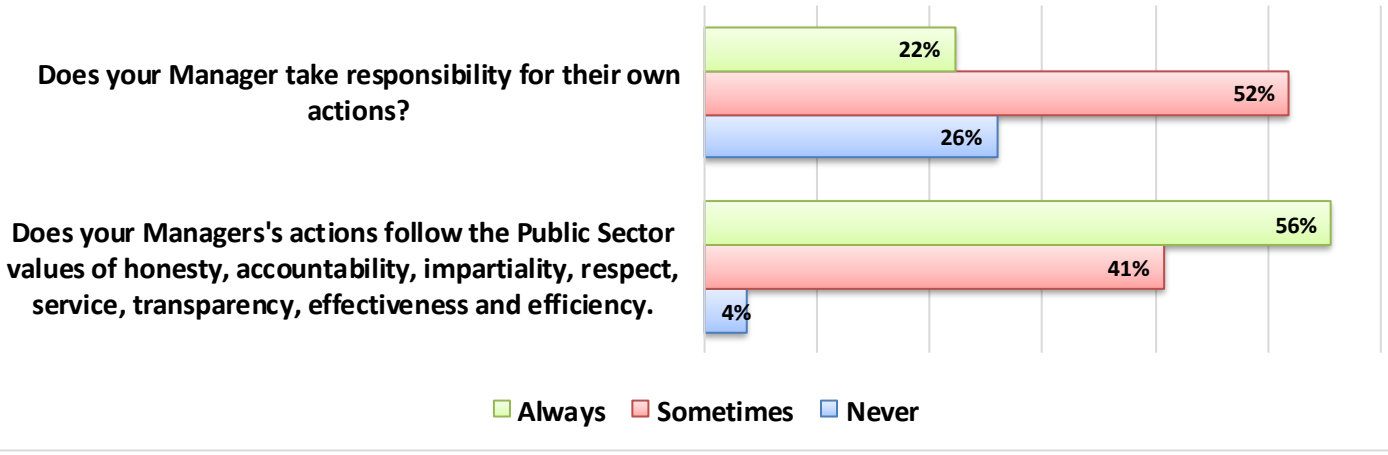
It is important to remember when reading this report that the use of 'management' has been used for all the feedback received by participants regardless of their managers official position title.

It should be noted that the participation rates for the Penryhn Island Government was 71% of the total number of employees and the results in the report represent the ratings and feedback provided from those employees not from the total number.

Leadership Survey Response Rate



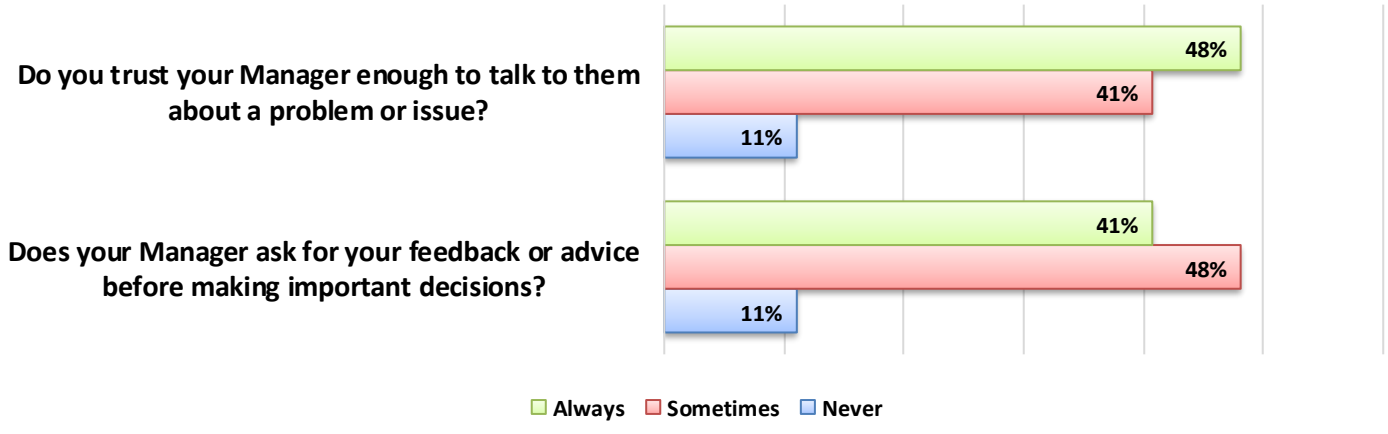
Trust & Integrity



Summary of Results:
22% of participants selected Always when asked if their manager takes responsibility for their actions. A higher amount, 26%, selected Never, and 52% selected Sometimes which is higher than the other two ratings combined. This should concern management. Comments provided supported the ratings, with participants stating that sometimes responsibility was taken by their manager, at other times it was not.

A much higher result was achieved for the next question, with 56% of participants selecting Always. Feedback provided included an expectation that managers should uphold the values of the Public Sector, and that some managers/supervisors are not always honest with their staff.

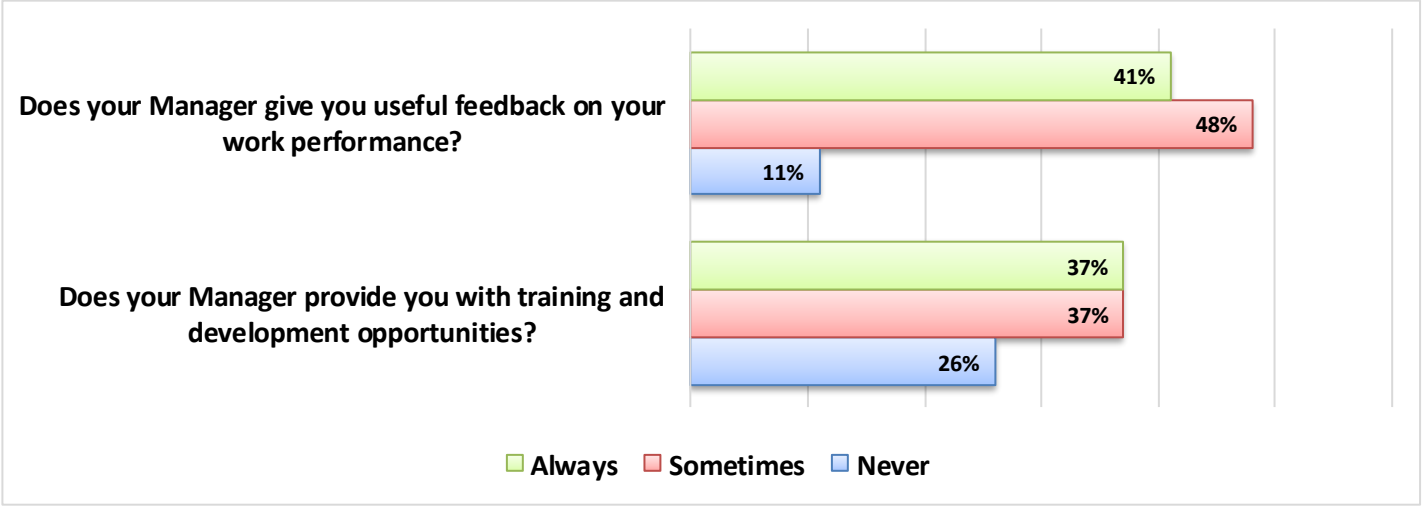
Communications



Summary of Results:
48% of participants selected Always for the first question, leaving 41% that selected Sometimes. Comments from participants included that there are some staff who would talk to their manager about issues or problems, but for some it depended on what the problem or issue was that determined whether they would discuss it with their manager.

A slightly lower result for the next question, with 41% of participants selecting Always, and 48% selecting Sometimes. Participants' feedback noted that managers regularly do ask their staff for advice or feedback. Some of the participants noted that they are asked advice when it is their area of work or expertise and this would be a reason why some participants selected Sometimes.

Performance & Development

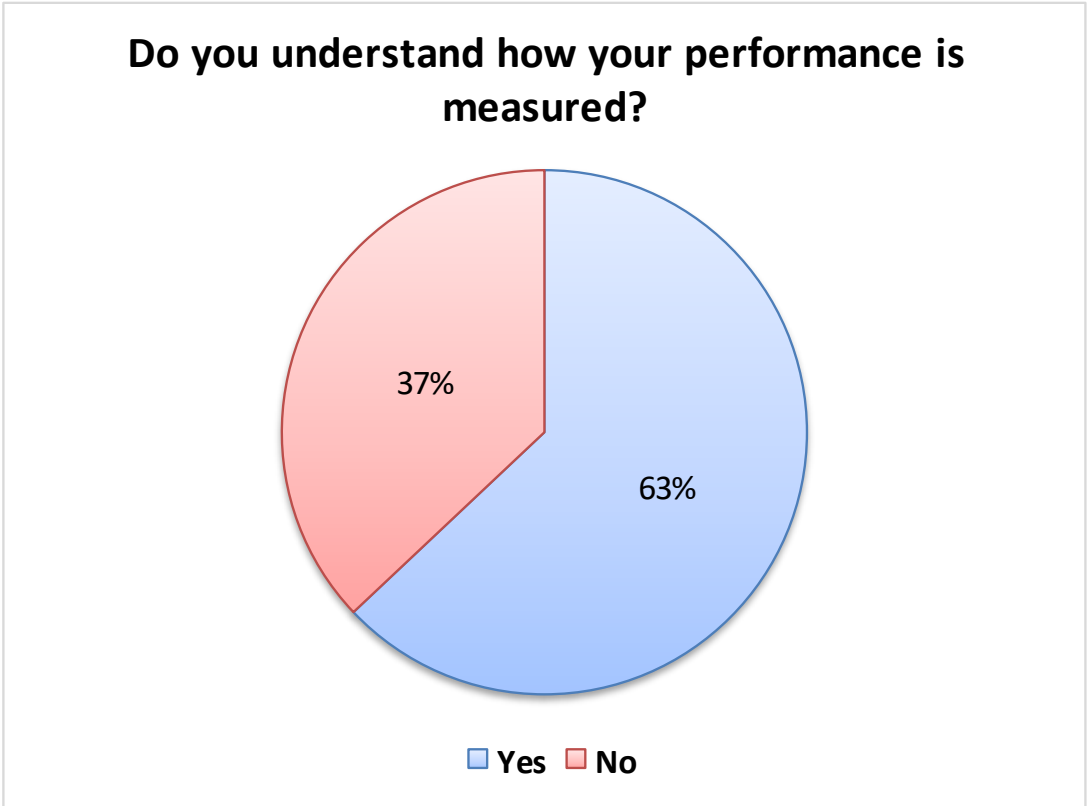


Summary of Results:

48% of participants selected Sometimes when asked if their manager gave them useful feedback on their performance. The comments given by participants support these ratings, with some staff stating that feedback was provided both for achievements and when improvements needed to be made.

Participants selected 37% for both Always and Sometimes, leaving the remaining 26% selecting Never. Comments noted that more opportunities for training and development were needed.

When asked if staff understand how their performance is measured, 63% selected Yes, which is a good result, though this does leave 37% who selected No and therefore do not understand. This should be an area that management look into further. Performance Appraisals and regular one-on-one meetings with staff are good tools to use to ensure that staff understand their role, know how their performance is measured and provide an opportunity to receive feedback.



Improvements

Comments highlighted the following areas for improvement:

- Be honest and fair
- Follow public sector values
- More training and development opportunities for staff
- Communicate more with staff
- Be more visible outside of the office
- Be a better listener

The Manager's Toolkit: A Practical Guide to Managing People at Work—The aim of this course is to give you a practical guide to managing people at work. It does not matter whether you are a first time manager in a shop or a middle manager in an office environment; the same skills apply to every work place. In the course you will engage with some HR theories and then see how they translate into every day working life. At the end of the course we hope you will be better equipped to choose a suitable employee, to motivate and appraise your team, to manage conflict in the work place and to lead and make decision on a day to day basis.

Leading Diverse Teams & Organizations—In this new course, you'll gain evidence-based knowledge and practical tools to help you design and lead diverse, equitable, and inclusive (DEI) teams and organizations. In the course, you'll learn to better understand yourself and your personal identity in the workplace and gain new skills to identify privilege, implicit bias, and micro-aggressions in your organization and to take action as an active ally and change advocate.

Leadership in 21st Century Organizations—In this course, you'll travel with Jim as he takes on leadership challenges ranging from strategy execution, to inspiring people, to maintaining an ethical approach. Experts agree that twentieth-century leadership practices are inadequate for the stormy twenty-first-century present. This provocative course equips you with the insights you'll need to rise with the occasion of a rapidly shifting business landscape.

Creative Thinking: Techniques and Tools for Success—In today's ever-growing and changing world, being able to think creatively and innovatively are essential skills. It can sometimes be challenging to step back and reflect in an environment which is fast paced or when you are required to assimilate large amounts of information. Making sense of or communicating new ideas in an innovative and engaging way, approaching problems from fresh angles, and producing novel solutions are all traits which are highly sought after by employers.

Conflict Transformation—This course introduces you to the concept of conflict transformation and how it differs from conflict resolution, management, and prevention. We'll see how conflict offers opportunities for constructive change, and we'll explore different tools and methods for engaging conflict constructively.
